

THE SCHENCK SCHOOL

project profile

The Schenck School needed a security upgrade, but wasn't sure which solution would best fit their unique facility. After contracting Invictus Consulting, LLC, for a full physical environment assessment, the School contacted A3 Communications for an integrated solution to help secure their most valuable assets: staff, faculty and students.

the customer

For nearly 60 years, The Schenck School, located in Atlanta, Georgia, has offered a comprehensive educational program to integrate kindergarten through sixth grade students with dyslexia into mainstream schools. Recognized as one of the top schools for dyslexic students in the United States, students typically attend The Schenck School for two to four years. Their low child-to-teacher ratio ensures students receive an education tailored to their specific learning needs. Additionally, the School offers a program for dyslexic adults who want assistance overcoming their disability.

the challenge

The Schenck School needed help identifying their security opportunities and deficits. After Invictus Consulting assessed their environment, administrators decided to dedicate funds to their access control and surveillance systems. With a better understanding of their needs, the School required an accessible, updated solution to reassure parents, staff and students.

the solution

A3 provided The Schenck School with an integrated access control and IP surveillance solution to secure all necessary doors, while managing entry. Their new system includes an S2 Security NetBox System Controller, HID EasyLobby Visitor Management System software with driver's license reader and badge printer, Hanwha Techwin IP surveillance cameras and Panduit Cat6 cabling. A3 also provided on-site training for staff.

the result

The Schenck School received a comprehensive solution to ensure the safety of their students, staff and visitors. Not only can they effectively control who enters their facility, they can offer parents complete peace of mind sending their children to learn and grow each day.

from the client

"A3 presented themselves in a manner that allowed them to beat out some other very good integrators who were competing for this job; their service stood up to this recommendation. They were a great resource of useful information for the implementation of our platform recommendations as it related to The Schenck School's electronic security."
